The Granary

A warehouse is converted, re-fitted and re-purposed to function as a new restaurant, bar and an event hall whilst retaining the character of the original building. Recycled timber, glass, and steel works are sensitively fitted into the new surroundings.

Jury Citation

“Riveting effort to inject new life and transform the derelict into a lively hang out and fun place to gather.”

The Marian

Boutique Lodging House

The Marian was a lodging house to accommodate visiting pilgrims and the original building was a mansion belonging to the prominent Ong Family of Kuching. The existing structures and building elements are kept intact even with new addition and alteration works. Internal partitions, new washrooms, and other amenities are skilfully implemented with the reassigned functions of the original premise.

The project entails the conversion of the former Public Works Department's mechanical workshops to accommodate new production hubs for fashion, crafts, technology and cultural industries. Multiple steel containers were incorporated as new working, gathering, meeting and event spaces with three different blocks hosting the variety of activities.
